THE BLUE OF NOON Her shoulders were bare to the point of indecency. In that light I found the glitter of her blond hair unbear able. She gave me a feeling of purity nonetheless. Even in her debauchery, there was such candor in her that I sometimes wanted to grovel at her feet. I was afraid of her. I saw that she was worn out. She was on the point

Blue Of Noon By Georges

Blue of Noon (French: Le Bleu du Ciel) is an erotic novella by Georges Bataille. Although Bataille completed the work in 1935, it was not published until Jean-Jacques Pauvert did so in 1957. (Pauvert previously published the writings of the Marquis de Sade.) Urizen Books published Harry Mathews' English-language translation in 1978.

Blue of Noon (1957), for instance, intertwines sex with death in this way. Where there is one, there is the other, and the two culminate in a tryst between the two protagonists in a graveyard. Similarly, The Story of the Eye is a novel which constantly interweaves objects that resemble, or sound like, or (to use the grammatical term chosen by Barthes) that decline , eyes and urine.

BLUE OF NOON by Georges Bataille | Kirkus Reviews

Set against the backdrop of Europe's slide into Fascism, Blue of Noon is a blackly compelling account of depravity and violence. As its narrator lurches despairingly from city to city in a surreal sexual and mental nightmare of squalor, sadism and drunken encounters, his internal collapse mirrors the fighting and marching on the streets outside.

GEORGES BATAILLE BLUE OF NOON PDF

Georges Bataille's 1935 novel The Blue of Noon is inundated with literal and metaphorical descriptions of corpses, which are used to convey the narrator's self-ravaging tides of fear and desire. Simultaneously, the novel is interjected with strangely removed (despite the narrator's physical proximity) observations of the political events leading up to World War II.

Blue of Noon it was like a dawning, an uncovering of a type of writing that I've been trying to find an example of, since it is the style of most of the things I write. Bataille combines his emotions and feelings and anguish and disgust and frustration with the story of this guy and his relationships with various women.
