Johannes Brahms's Violin Sonata No. 3 in D minor, Op. 108 is the last of his violin sonatas, composed between 1886 and 1888. Unlike the two previous violin sonatas, it is in four movements. The sonata is dedicated to Brahms' friend and colleague Hans von Bülow, and was premiered in Budapest in 1888 with Jenő Huby on violin and the composer at the piano.

The 10 Best Violin Sonatas | Consordini

Johannes Brahms's Violin Sonatas are among the greatest masterpieces in 19th-century chamber music. Brahms wrote these sonatas between 1878 and 1888, at the height of his creative powers. With these powerful works Brahms brought the genre of violin sonatas into a new dimension.

Brahms - Violin Sonata No. 3 in D minor, Op. 108 (Perlman & Ashkenazy) Complete with Sheet Music

The song-like nature of the first two Brahms sonatas is very much to the fore, Ibragimova playing with a miraculously sinuous vocal line, graceful, sonorous and at times heartbreakingly tender. Tiberghien is both poetic and magisterial, particularly in the first movement of the second sonata.

Josef Suk's playing style embodied (or embodies) a nobility and sophistication - in addition to strength and panache - almost ideally suited to Brahms's three violin sonatas. The playing shimmers and glows, and the melodic lines sound almost effortless even though he supplies the requisite smoldering intensity when called for.

As the clarinet part extends further down than the lowest note on the violin, Brahms made considerable revisions to the clarinet part, which entailed changes in the piano part, and consequently the printing of a new piano score. This is followed by the second and third violin sonatas, in A major and D minor respectively.
