Students can try their hand at reconstructing these relationships using the Cladograms Gizmo. In the Gizmo, students first determine which traits are shared by different organisms in a group. Students then try to create the most parsimonious cladogram, or the cladogram that would require the fewest evolutionary changes to occur.

In the new Cell Types Gizmo, students are introduced to the diversity of cells that exist in nature, from bacteria and protists to specialized animal cells such as neurons and red blood cells. Along the way, students will learn how to focus a microscope and how to apply special tests to determine if a sample is alive.

These concepts are explored in the brand-new Reaction Energy Gizmo. In the Gizmo, students examine simple chemical reactions such as the synthesis of water and the combustion of methane. Using a set of mechanical claws, students break up the bonds holding the reactants together and measure the energy absorbed in this process.

Design a car to protect a test dummy in a collision. Adjust the length and stiffness of the crumple zone and the rigidity of the safety cell to determine how the car will deform during the crash. Add seat belts and/or airbags to prevent the dummy from hitting the steering wheel. Three different body types (sedan, SUV, and subcompact) are available and a wide range of crash speeds can be used.
